

A look into depopulation and urbanization

1. Motivation behind Research Paper

Japan faces many profound issues. The birthrate and aging population are considered to be the most serious problems that Japanese people are facing. For example, land is decreasing in Japan. I thought about how to alleviate this problem and move towards improvement. I also thought that the region should be revitalized by rebuilding towns and finding ways to attract more young people to Japan. From 1960 onwards, high economic growth has occurred in Japan. As a result, many young Japanese people have moved to urban areas. This research paper aims to explore the possible solutions to these problems.

2. Introduction

The goal of the research paper is to find the causes and reasons for Japan's aging population by studying an online survey.

A study conducted by the Economic Industry Agency said, "the extension of life expectancy because of medical standards and health awareness is improving, so the elderly population is increasing. In addition, the number of unmarried people and those who get married later are increasing." To improve this problem, a lot of work has to be done. For example, promotion of exchange population, and employment promotion.

3. Results and Analysis

Why is depopulation happening in Japan? The main problem is the expansion of urban areas. There are more conveniences than in rural areas. It is superior to rural areas with regard to living space. Rural youth are afraid of not being able to find a job, so they move to urban areas.

Now, revitalizing rural areas is important to their survival. In order to revitalize rural areas, we must develop local industries. Young people work in rural areas, so more business and inclusivity needs to be brought to the young people into the community.

Now, there is a tendency for people to refuse to work in the community due to a lack of jobs or opportunities to work. If we created a Creation Business, young people can find something worthwhile. Motivation can be improved and workers will feel more positive about their work. A virtuous cycle is created in which the availability of jobs as a local development project attracts people to work, and if the region is revitalized, the attractiveness of the region is further enhanced.

4. Conclusion and Future Problems

We must now derive the needs of the community and find local attractions. Japan has many problems, and the situation is so severe that depopulation is out of control, so it will take more time to improve depopulation. We are in a situation that is currently out of our control. Now, only the young people can change this situation in Japan, so they should make an effort to solve this problem.

5. Reflection

We need to improve our motivation now so that we can improve depopulation in 20-30 years, since the percentage of elderly people is high and nothing can be done about it in the current situation in Japan. The opinions of high school students can not be reflected in society, so we have to study depopulation. We acquire knowledge. We have to know the current status of depopulation. When we become adults, I'll make sure this problem can be remedied
